Describe the students' representation and engagement in various administrative, co-curricular and extracurricular activities within a maximum of 500 words

The institute has always been a stickler for transparency in student-teacher interactions. This includes the active exchange of ideas for improvement from both faculty members as well as students. Academic issues stemming from students on the pedagogies followed are resolved within a short timeframe. Students are represented by teachers offering the course and the student representatives. Academic issues in the teaching and evaluation process are represented in this committee and solved with immediate effect. The students, apart from the normal classroom instruction and training, need to be exposed to vast changes and advancements in science and technology. Each branch organizes Seminars, Symposia, Conferences and Workshops in this regard. Eminent delegates used to deliver lectures on recent industrial trends.
